MATCH PREVIEW:

Otterbein remains at home following Saturday's tri-match, putting its winning streak on the line against the Quakers and first-year head coach Sophie Windover, formerly the lead assistant at Heidelberg.

The Cardinals have won 19 matches in a row, and their run of winning 48-straight sets came to a close over the weekend against MSJ. It settles as the seventh-longest streak in NCAA Division III history.

The Quakers have beaten Defiance twice this fall along with a sweep over Northwestern of Ohio. Sofia Thomas represents the most dangerous hitting option for Wilmington (2.37 kills per set) while setter Andie Dolven is dishing out over seven assists per frame.

Otterbein, back in the AVCA national poll the past few weeks, has dropped just one set against Wilmington since 2008.

Senior Emma Linehan is coming off a week in which she hit an efficient .440 from the middle, while libero Bridget Oder averaged more than six digs per set in the trio of wins.

Otterbein is now 37-5 since the beginning of last season.
